

Wendt & Kühn wooden toymaker training

Woodturning, carving, dipping and painting – these and many other wood processing techniques are taught to young men and women during the three-year training program through the Wooden Toymaker and Woodturner School in Seiffen – the only one of its kind in all of Germany. The traditional manufactory has been successfully training students for decades. Each year, up to four young adults are given the opportunity to complete the wooden toymaker training program. The practical training modules are held right at company headquarters in Grünhainichen so that the apprentices will be thoroughly educated in all the production departments and thereby gain practical specialized knowledge of all the facets involved in the manufacturing.

Photographer: Juliane Mostertz